The Menagerie will visit Highgate on Wednesday next, and St. Albans on Thursday September 22d. Notwithstanding the great increase in By Brook Emrer, ... the expenses of the caravan this year the rate of admission remains a twenty-five cents.

It is said that rare specimens are in cluded in this great collection which good children will insist they have as inalienable right to behold no matte how often they have "seen the ele plant." For a list of animals, bird and other curiosities of this "Egypt ian Caravan," we would refer to the illustrated advertisement.

This caravan is accompanied by band of musicians whose performan ces will add greatly to the attraction of the exhibition.

From the tenor of the commendations of this Zoological collection in several highly respectable newspapers, we are satisfied that it is, perhaps, the best moveable one in the country. While in New York city last winter it attracted large crowds of delighted visitors, and on the present tour through this State it has attracted thousands of spectators of all ages who were pleased with the novelties it contains. As has been properly remarked: "There is more than a more momentary gratification to be derived from a visit to an exhibition of this character, which commends itself to the attention of the educated and refined even more forcibly than to the mere amusement seeking mass."

A grand entre into the village of St Albans will be made on Thursday morning which no one, we presume, having the power will fail to see. The attractions of this menagerie are so fully set forth in the advertisement and displayed in the pictorial placards about the county that the caravan will call together, no doubt, a large crowd of visitors. As something is to be learnt from this exhibition, something to be gained beyond mere amusement. we commend it cordially to the patronage of our readers.

-On Wednesday, the 7th inst., Mr. Charles E. Wilson, of St. Albans Point, shot an eagle, its wings measuring, when expanded, seven feet and six mehes.
